

The Family Portrait

Family groupings are done in your home or at an outdoor location. We want your family to look natural and relaxed. For this reason we do not recommend in studio family groupings of more than 5 people. Good locations are those where you spend family time. Your home, cottage, the beach or on the family boat are some suggestions.

Clothing preparation for groups is of major concern. Solids are highly recommended. Prints and patterns distract and can clash with patterns worn by another family member. The best advice is to think of the entire families apparel as one outfit. Meaning, don't put a print or color on another family member that you would not add to your own outfit. Everyone's clothing should blend and go together. If you need assistance in this area we're more than happy to help out. And a little planning here will result in a far superior final product.

Also take into consideration the room where the portrait will hang. It's best to wear colors that will complement the decor of the room. If the intended room is decorated in pastels or other light colors. Keep your clothing light as well. And use a light frame. If the portrait is planned to hang in a darker situation, such as a den, library or above a heavily wooded fireplace mantle. Then select clothing in the darker shades such as burgundy, plum, deep greens and navy. Khaki works well with light and dark colors. Having the portrait taken in the room where it will hang is a wonderful idea, the colors of the room will be reflected in the portrait!
